

Chemical Equilibrium (Definitions)

•At equilibrium a dynamic system remains in a constant state for a period of time, eg. currency exchange rates. In a chemical system the concentrations of reactants and products remain constant over time.

•On the molecular level, the system is dynamic: The rate of change is the same in either the forward or reverse directions.

